

UPDATE

Trista's NEW JOB!

With husband Ryan in heavy training for the Ironman Triathlon, Trista's found a fun way to keep busy.

Reality TV's happiest bride is breaking into sales — and having a blast — hosting “purse parties”

Trista Sutter's got a brand-new bag — lots of 'em, actually! The ex-Bachelorette has gone back to work, selling custom-designed handbags for B's Purses out of her home in Vail, Colo., and at friends' houses around the country. “My husband was getting a little worried that once the offers dried up, he would be the only contributor to our bank account,” quips Trista, who recently began hosting “purse parties” as a rep for the company, which was founded by a friend's sister. While Trista says the “adorable” bags practically sell themselves, she's not in it for the money. “I just want to have fun with my friends,” she explains, adding that hosting the parties “is better than catching up by e-mail.”

◀ “I already have my eye on a few of the purses,” says Trista. For more info on the custom-made bags, which start at $55, check out bspurses.com and mention that you heard about the bags from Trista and In Touch when ordering.

B's
A Purse Boutique
Sassy & Chic